

Wordsworth's Newsletter

Words of Wisdom from The Words Workshop

Coffee Break Quiz

This month's Wordsworth is dedicated to anagrams. An anagram is a word or phrase formed by rearranging the letters of another word or phrase. For example, an anagram of the word parliament is partial men.

Wordsworth has anagrammatised some titles of the works of Shakespeare. Your challenge, if you choose to accept it, is to decipher the anagrams below. You have ten minutes starting from ... now!

A Fetter Showmen Thigh – (The Taming of the Shrew)

A Panda Rental Tycoon – (Antony and Cleopatra)

Menial Odour Jet – (Romeo and Juliet)

La As Juicer Us – (Julius Caesar)

A Cab Hood Mouthing Nut – (Much Ado about Nothing)

The first respondent to correctly work out the Shakespeare titles will win ... well absolutely nothing, but they will get a mention in the next Wordsworth newsletter when we will also reveal the answers.

Good luck!

Wordsworth's quote of the month ...

In a slight change of format, over the next few months Wordsworth will bring you the stupidest things ever said by politicians. Hold on to your hats guys, there are some crackers.

This month we bring you a quote from John Prescott when he was Deputy Prime Minister.

Prescott was discussing green belt land – land designated to stay green for parks etc. and not for development either as housing or for industry. He said:

"The green belt is a Labour achievement and we mean to build on it."

Oh dear.

Follow us on Twitter for loads of copywriting tips and updates: @Words_Workshop.
If you no longer wish to receive this newsletter, please reply with Remove in the subject line.